GET UP! STAND UP!

Campaigning for Rights, Respect and Self-Reliance

“This year’s conference centres on struggles for the Black community in Britain, waged over three decades, from the 1960s to the 1980s.

For Caribbeans in particular, these local UK struggles were at first part and parcel of a broader politics of liberation and freedom - anti-colonialist and anti-imperialist, and anti-racist. The campaign slogans of the time were militant. And that militancy inflected our poetry and song. “Get up, stand up!” urged poet-musician Peter Tosh. The mood was insurrectionary. The most radical of us aspired to establishing our own non-exploitative, non-capitalist, democratic “bespoke” socialisms, back home. Cuba’s was a very Caribbean revolution.”

Colin Prescod

Eric and Jessica Huntley

Jessica and Eric Huntley are highly politically active people, both as a married couple, business partners and also in their own right as individuals. As well as the extensive political activism, advocacy and campaign work they participated in within formal organisations they also actively supported several political campaigns in an, informal and non-organisational manner.
